Online Desk: New York City witnessed an unfortunate turn of events at the highly anticipated Dhallywood Film and Music Awards, as actor Zayed Khan found himself at the centre of an unexpected and disrespectful outburst from the audience.

The atmosphere quickly turned sour on Sunday when thousands of spectators packed into Amazura Hall began booing and heckling as Zayed Khan's name was announced, ultimately forcing him to abruptly leave the stage. The evening started with great anticipation as presenter Sazu Khadem announced Zayed Khan's upcoming performance with Priyo Moni.

However, as the duo stepped into the spotlight, instead of receiving the warm reception they deserved, the atmosphere quickly turned hostile, with the audience resorting to boos and mocking noises at Zayed Khan. Alamgir Khan Alam, the owner of Show Time Music, the organiser of the event, rushed to the stage in an effort to restore order and remind the audience of the importance of showing respect to the performers.

Despite the unfavourable circumstances, Zayed Khan bravely attempted to salvage the situation. Taking hold of the microphone, he announced, "I am finishing."

Determined to showcase his dedication to his craft, Zayed Khan proceeded to sing a song with Priyo Moni, despite the lack of a proper rehearsal. However, the audience's disruptive behaviour persisted, with mocking and continued booing, leaving Khan with no choice but to end his performance and leave the stage.
