Some 70 members of BASIS were present on the occasion. Odoo ERP has an app store with thousands of business solutions. The software has no vendor lock-in and is open source. Customers can easily buy software from one vendor and get software services from another.

The software can be easily customised as per your convenience, which is time-consuming for most of the ERP software in the market. Odoo ERP has gained popularity due to its open-source mode, modularity, easy integration, scalability, user-friendly interface, mobile accessibility, low cost, and active community.

Regarding the new solutions, Kolpolok CEO SM Nazmul Hasan hoped that Odoo ERP software will play an essential role in building a smart Bangladesh. Kolpolok Software has announced the partnership with Odoo ERP that is already connected to over 5000 partners across the world. To ensure maximum service in the Bangladesh market, the Kolpolok developers will provide module-based skills and are ready to provide customer relationship management, inventory management, and human resource management on Odoo platforms. Kolpolok is serving clients in both enterprise and community versions.

Hundreds of applications in both versions are capable of automating any business organization. The company has already uploaded customised modules of both hotel management and hospital management software on the Odoo app store, which are currently available for free.

Kolpolok has its own experienced Odoo developers and consultants who provide application customization and consultation services as per customer requirements. They also provide necessary assistance in database migration.
