Online Desk: Not only Gausia Market, most of the markets in the capital are in risky condition, said Bazlur Rashid, assistant director of Fire Service and Civil Defence, on Thursday. “There is a fire extinguisher in Gausia Market. But there is not adequate management and equipment required for rescue operation after an accident.”

Bazlur Rashid said this to media after visiting Gausia Market today as part of their survey. Representatives of NSI-DGFI also with the Fire Service during the visit.

“There are six stairs in Gausia Market. Some shops are on the stairs and goods blocked some space. Those will have to be removed. Smooth evacuation will be hampered in case of any fire incident.”

“Several markets including Rajdhani Super Market, Thatharibazar market, New Market, Chawkbazar Market are risky. Those can’t fulfill the demand of the Fire Service. We request that these markets should be self-sufficient,” Bazlur Rashid added.
